

PTMTS position on Russia's attack on Ukraine by Putin

The Polish Society of Theoretical and Applied Mechanics expresses its solidarity with the scientific community of Ukraine, which, like the whole nation, was affected by the brutal Russian aggression that began on February 24, 2022. We are outraged and shocked by this. We offer whatever help and support we are able, in particular to those members of the academic community of Ukraine who had to leave their homeland.

We appeal to the scientific community in Russia to use all possible means of exerting pressure on the Putin regime at this critical moment in history. We protest the fact that the achievements of science, instead of serving man, should be turned against him.

We express the hope that the sacrifices made, solidarity and support of Europe and the world will bring security and peace to the people of Ukraine.
